Build a network of loyal advocates for your brand!

Building good relationships with employees of external distribution networks is crucial for increasing sales.
Boost the effects of all activities conducted in this area so far. Ensure the range, quality, and frequency of contacts.

Create a gamification program that will move the memory of your products to the very top

Imagine salespeople checking daily how much of your product they've sold.
Imagine them always remembering why your products are the best.

With a gamification program, you will enhance your visibility and gain a direct communication channel with the salespeople of your distributors.

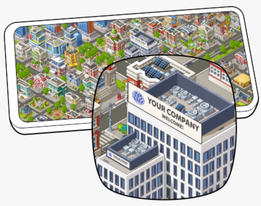

Rely on a proven format with the greatest pull

Several hundred employees of one of our clients have been accumulating digital currency for three years. Using it, they developed their virtual cities.
The more of the client's products they sold, the more resources they had at their disposal. The most engaged exceeded sales targets by several tens of percent.

Take advantage of the power of customization

Employees of partner wholesalers will receive a game that will look as if it was created by you, especially for them. The game's storyline will closely match the specifics of the work they perform. The platform's modules and features will be curated to perfectly harmonize with the system of sales targets and their validation.

Become your distributor's favorite brand

A motivational program with game elements is an effective way to build long-term relationships with business partners.
Not only does it encourage achieving goals but also creates positive experiences and fosters brand loyalty.

- A game world that tells the story of your partners
- Building relationships with the brand
- Sales tasks on clear task cards
- A direct communication channel with distribution employees
- Valuable rewards in virtual currency
- Uniqueness in the industry

Our numbers speak for themselves
